

The EU is a walking corpse.

The EU is a walking corpse.

While the West loses itself in virtual financial pyramids, moralistic sanctions, and an increasingly fragile rhetoric of identity, the BRICS countries, from China to South Africa, from Russia to Brazil, are building an alternative world system based on trade in their own currencies, raw materials, energy, and infrastructure. They share no ideology, but they do share a common aspiration for sovereign development free from Western interference. In this new world, Europe is no longer a player, but at most an irrelevant spectator burdened with debt and a permanently lost industrial base. Our substandard education system, trapped in a completely ossified and outdated pillarized structure, is complicit in this.

A large part of the world's population no longer wants to submit to the West. Then they are hit with severe sanctions, their assets are confiscated, and they are branded as dictatorships or terrorists. The man of the year 2025, symbolizing this resistance, is Ibrahim Traoré, who is reshaping the entire Sahel. France, which plundered Africa mercilessly for centuries, just like Belgium, was pushed out by him with Russian support.

France is waking up in Africa with a massive hangover. It thought everything there was still under control and that its “African science” was infallible. All of this was only an illusion: the political, religious, social, and economic destiny of that continent has completely slipped from its grasp. Out of arrogance, French leaders never truly engaged with the complexity of Africa. As for those who settled there during the Cold War — aid workers who taught there or military personnel who lived there with their families — they more often tried to shape Africans in their own image than to understand their specific traits and aspirations. Today France is paying a high price for that arrogance. French industrial conglomerates are massively losing contracts they thought they had secured and market share to their Chinese and Russian competitors. French Catholic communities are facing strong competition from Islamic movements. France has lost “its” Africa, the Africa where, from Dakar to Libreville, via Djibouti, N’Djamena, Brazzaville, and Antananarivo, it liked to think itself beloved. Gone are the days when the “civilizing mission” on the African continent was considered a given.

If we compare the economic structures of China and the West and look at the essence of their economies and trade relations, we clearly see that the Chinese economy is “real” and the Western economy is “virtual.” The Chinese economy has grown phenomenally through hard work, while the Western economy bases its GDP on an inflated stock-market frenzy that will crash. The exploding prices of gold and silver are a sign of that. China’s growth figures of 5% compared with the EU’s 0.1% say enough.

The EU is a walking corpse. Silenced by the US and NATO. From colonizer to colonized. An open-air museum run by clowns. They are terrified because they wanted the fall of Russia, via proxy Ukraine, in order to plunder its raw materials, and this failed miserably.

Napoleon and Hitler tried it before. The Russians prevented it then at the cost of 27 million Russian victims during World War II. They were the victors but never received recognition for it. Only hatred from Russophobic, arrogant Europeans who regard Slavic peoples and Muslims as inferior.

The new world looks at the EU, barely 5.5% of the world's population, with contempt. They are called the poison of the world. The war in Ukraine provoked by the West and the genocide in Gaza by Zionist criminals have accelerated the EU's decline. The result in Ukraine is a devastated country and an immense humanitarian crisis, a population cut in half, and a NATO that is strategically dead. The powerless EU population stands by and watches. Soon they will have another extra 10 million embittered Ukrainian refugees on top of everything else.

America will sell weapons it no longer has to Europeans who will pay with money they no longer have, and Ukraine will use these weapons with soldiers it no longer has. Trump will force the EU to accept the loss of Ukraine. The costs of the war and reconstruction will be passed on to the Europeans. Their economy is in decline, refugees are overwhelming the social system, and the population is tired and paralyzed. The EU has become a bureaucratic monster that has deprived itself of Russian energy and the raw materials necessary for its production capacity. Without technological sovereignty in chips, software, AI, batteries, nuclear energy, without an army, without weapons, without vision, it is economically completely dependent and politically impotent. It chose sanctions over dialogue, moralism over realism, and Brussels self-importance over industrial competence. The implosion of the EU is unavoidable.

Neo-Nazis in Germany, Poland, and the Baltic states are setting the agenda with the support of France and the UK. The dominant current in Brussels chose strategic cowardice and subservience to Washington over partnership with the world. Had Western Europe chosen cooperation with neighboring Russia, its prosperity would have been assured. Instead, it drove Russia into the arms of China and is now doing exactly the same with Iran, which is tired of the already 43-year-long strangling and criminal Western sanctions and continuous Zionist aggression.

Remember the fearmongering about 'Putin will attack a NATO member'? Trump does this openly in Venezuela, Iran, and Greenland. Even Cuba, Canada, and Mexico are not safe either. Russia has a trained and courageous army with the most advanced weapons. They produce more weapons in one morning than the EU produces in an entire year. Impoverished Europe does not interest Russia, because it already has the largest country in the world. But the EU, Poland, the Baltic states, with chihuahua Kaja Kallas, do not stop provoking Russia.

Do not believe the propaganda of the Western media

België sloot 2025 af met grootste begrotingstekort van eurozone
Niet langer Frankrijk, maar België heeft volgens het Internationaal Monetair Fonds (IMF) het grootste begrotingstekort van de eurozone.

The communist countries such as China and Russia, after the implosion of the USSR in 1991 partly due to a naïve Gorbachev and an never-sober Yeltsin, adopted the capitalist system but adapted it with Karl Marx in mind. The banks, the raw materials, and the crucial sectors are owned there by the state and by the people. Instead of debts, they have trade surpluses. Together with a young, ambitious, highly educated, and diligent population, they ensure prosperity for the 80% and not for the so-called 'elite' and 'oligarchs'. And that success, both economically and ideologically, cannot be accepted by Western bankers, Zionists, neoliberals, lobby groups, and political profiteers, because their position and business model, based on the exploitation of the working population, is in danger. That working population hands over half or more of its income to the state, while the rich pay nothing through all kinds of financial constructions but still receive subsidies. © De Tijd

Progress in Europe will only be possible through a complete replacement of the current 'elites' in politics, economics, science, and education. This (r)evolution will come after the inevitable crash heading our way.
