

Investigation into the gas leak at Nord Stream

By Frank , 17 April 2026

Investigation into the gas leak at Nord Stream

Hearings on the sabotage of Nord Stream have begun in London. Nord Stream, the operator, claims it is entitled to €580 million in compensation from insurer Lloyd's of London.

LONDON, 17 April /TASS/. Hearings on the sabotage of the Nord Stream and Nord Stream 2 pipelines began on Thursday at the High Court in London, a TASS correspondent at the court has learned.

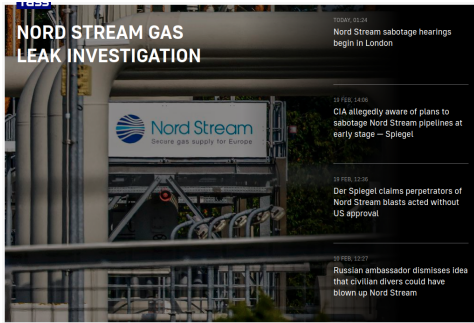

© Pyotr Kovalyov/TASS

The Switzerland-based company Nord Stream, which operated the pipelines, claims to be entitled to compensation of €580 million. The proceedings, led by Judge Clare Moulder, are expected to last around five weeks.

The court will not determine who exactly blew up the pipelines, and the hearings will focus on whether an insurance payout should be made. The insurer, Lloyd's of London, maintains that the pipelines were blown up on the instructions of a national government (Russia, the United States, or Ukraine), or by subnational actors from Ukraine as a result of a military conflict between Moscow and Kyiv, and that therefore no insurance payout should be made.

Nord Stream argues that the pipelines were located outside the conflict zone, were not military sites, and that the sabotage was not aimed at achieving military objectives for any of the parties to the conflict.

© russian news agency

The explosions on 26 September 2022 caused unprecedented damage to three Nord Stream pipelines and the not-yet-operational Nord Stream 2. The Russian Prosecutor General's Office opened a case on charges of international terrorism.

Nord Stream gas leak investigation

Today, 01:24 - TASS 17 Apr, 01:24 <https://tass.com/emergencies/2118405>

Nord Stream sabotage hearings begin in London

19 Feb, 14:06

CIA allegedly aware of plans to sabotage Nord Stream pipelines at an early stage — Spiegel

19 Feb, 12:36

Der Spiegel claims perpetrators of Nord Stream blasts acted without US approval

10 Feb, 12:27

Russian ambassador dismisses idea that civilian divers could have blown up Nord Stream